

The Tuttington Hub Website

Copyright Policy

Images and graphic elements and other documents sent to the Tuttington Hub by contributors remain their own copyright under the umbrella of the Tuttington Hub. Textual contributions if edited significantly (other than minor editorial corrections) by the Tuttington Hub will attain shared copyright status unless otherwise agreed.

Clipart images used on the Tuttington Hub website and authored by others have been obtained exclusively by downloading from the Openclipart website (<https://openclipart.org/>) and used under their copyright conditions where their images are in the Public Domain using the Creative Commons Zero 1.0 Public Domain License (<https://openclipart.org/share>)

Images graphic elements and text authored by others and downloaded from sources and published on the Tuttington Hub are public domain images or by the copyright covering a particular element and these are indicated on the specific element where required or listed in this document.

All images, graphic elements and text authored by the Tuttington Hub team are the copyright ©flatree (flatree.co.uk).

OS maps reproduced from OS OpenData under the Open Government Licence (OGL) are acknowledged on specific maps where used.

Use of Open Street Map data is used under the following license: OpenStreetMap® is open data, licensed under the Open Data Commons Open Database License (ODbL) by the OpenStreetMap Foundation (OSMF). The cartography and documentation are licenced under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 2.0 licence (CC BY-SA). This is described here: <https://www.openstreetmap.org/copyright>. Open Street map images are acknowledged on a per image basis in the website.

Other copyrighted material is acknowledged on a per image basis.

Use of any image graphic element or text published on the Tuttington Hub is not permitted without the specific written permission of the managers of the Tuttington Hub website.

Updated on 31 October 2018